

Preamble: As part of the planning for our upcoming external review, we're doing senior interviews for the first time in many years. We're interested in your honest feedback about your experiences here at Kenyon, especially in the biology department. Responses will be shared with other members of the department and with our external reviewers. This is a chance to influence the future direction of the department because the external review affords us the opportunity to revise our programs and approaches.

Curriculum: What do you think about the diversity of course offerings? Were you able to get the courses that you needed or wanted?

Research: If you did research, how did it influence your experience at Kenyon? Also, how did you start? If you did not do research, why not?

Depth vs. diversification: If you could do it over again, would you want to have more depth within the major or more diversification outside it? How did courses outside the major influence your experience at Kenyon?

Faculty interactions: How did interactions with faculty influence your experience at Kenyon?

Overall: What do you feel are the most important skills you've learned? What aspects of the biology curriculum were the most helpful in teaching these skills? Do you have thoughts about other approaches we might consider?
